14. General Objectives

As this is a 2nd year International Relations subject taught simultaneously with Public International Law and before European Union Law, it is important to have as its general objective that it deals with the study of a specific classification of international subjects with responsibilities in the economic area, opting for a vision that takes into account its activity and impact on international relations.

15. Specific Objectives

In addition to the static view of analyzing the attributions, composition, organization, functioning, competences of international economic institutions in general, establishing concepts, principles, sources of primary and secondary law, understanding how some of these organizations function in concrete.

16. Skills to be acquired

Ability to understand the genesis and evolution of institutions, learning to use the concepts and rules specific to international organizations; ability to interpret and apply these rules and develop research capacity in an immense world of institutionalized economic cooperation and integration at a universal and regional level.

17. Teaching Methodology
