14. General Objectives

The economic and legal perspectives are two faces of social phenomena. Economic Law should be observed from a neo-classical perspective, seeking to explain current legal systems, in general, and the legal regulation of the economy, in particular, based on criteria and objectives of economic efficiency. The Commercial Law component aims to understand the types of commercial companies, as a tool for developing economic activity in a competitive market.

15. Specific Objectives

The Course aims to constitute a useful instrument for all those who, also in the legal world, feel the need for a simultaneously theoretical and practical approach to matters, providing knowledge of the new relationships between Law and Economics.

16. Skills to be acquired

Aware of the profound change that has occurred in the area of legal regulation of the organization of economic activity, special attention will be paid to this evolution, interpreting the meaning of each economic paradigm.

17. Teaching Methodology

There will be a tendency to combine an essential discussion of theoretical topics, with the provision of practical information.
