14. General Objectives

To acquire knowledge about the phenomenon of Western Art Music creation in different historical periods, in line with a diachronic and interdisciplinary perspective that relates music with its surrounding contexts of production (social, aesthetic, philosophical and others).

15. Specific Objectives

To describe biographical paths of composers and related music legacies.
To acknowledge the relevance of social and cultural conditions in the genesis and interpretation of specific musical works.
To design and implement a research project on a specific topic.

16. Skills to be acquired

At the end of this curricular unit students should master basic periodization concepts in line with selected bibliography and define specific traits of genres and musical styles of each period, departing from aural recognition of selected repertoire. Preliminary notions about the construction of historical discourse in Music are also required.

17. Teaching Methodology

Class lectures planned upon selected bibliography and a set of supporting materials, including internet resources, illustrated projections and audio examples. The teaching experience includes critical résumés of chapters and articles, as well as discussion of topics related to the syllabus. These activities aim to develop the individual and collective skills and the necessary critical ability to develop research projects.
