14. General Objectives

The main objective of this course unit is to frame the Asian continent and its main political players within the overall contemporary international politics in a way that enables the study of a region that has acquired a geopolitical weight that cannot be ignored.

15. Specific Objectives

Given the geographic extension and political diversity of the Asian continent one of the fundamental objectives of this course unit is to try to analyse the political, security, economic and cultural matters that are specific to the different regional contexts.

16. Skills to be acquired

The objective is to facilitate the acquisition of the necessary instruments for a detailed and comparative analysis of the different political, security, economic and social issues that are most relevant within the region.

17. Teaching Methodology

To center the teaching and learning process according to the integrated participation of the students and an interaction between the lecture and the students according to the paradigm underlined within the Bologna Process.
