14. General Objectives

This course unit intends to analyse, on the one hand, the phenomena associated with organized crime and, on the other, terrorism, with respect to its causes, characteristics and nature. The idea is for students to gain well-grounded knowledge of both phenomena and their respective organizations.

15. Specific Objectives

The main objectives of this course unit are to transmit theoretical and empirical knowledge about organized crime and terrorism and the respective methods to counter it.

16. Skills to be acquired

Students are expected to learn the different aspects related to each phenomenon using theoretical frameworks that will help them to better understand both organized crime and terrorism, combining this knowledge with empirical evidence.

17. Teaching Methodology

To center the teaching and learning process according to the integrated participation of the students and an interaction between the lecture and the students according to the paradigm underlined within the Bologna Process.
